roof sometime after the family turned on the heat inside the A-frame dwelling. "It hadn't been used in a while, so the heat from inside must have helped loosen the snow."

The Wasatch County Sheriff's department responded to the emergency as well as park personnel.

The A-frame is one among a group of vacation homes at an elevation of about 7,000 feet, a mile toward Midway on the snow-bound Pine Creek Road (SR 224) from the Guardsman Pass intersection.
